

RESPONSIBILITY IS PUT UP TO WAGNER

Captain Egloff, of No. 13 Company, Praises Sullivan at Trial Today.

On the witness stand today, Captain Egloff, of No. 13 Company, praised Chief Sullivan for his prompt action in the fire at the Hotel New York. He said that when the alarm was given, he was the first to arrive at the scene, and that he saw the fire on the second floor. He said that he saw the fire on the second floor, and that he saw the fire on the second floor. He said that he saw the fire on the second floor, and that he saw the fire on the second floor.

Had No Warning.

To further questions, he said neither he nor the men with him had any warning of the crash until it came. "There were pieces of stuff falling down all the time," he said, "and we did not notice it much when plaster came down."

They had been in the building forty minutes at that time, he said, and practically all the fire on the second floor was out.

Q—How near were you to the hose, Mr. Egloff?

A—I do not know, but it was hitting me in the back all the time until it was cut off.

At this point Attorney O'Donoghue took up the cross-examination.

Q—Whose duty is it to look after the safety of the men when they are sent into a dangerous position?

A—The chief's, the man in charge.

Q—Is it not the duty of the man who sent you in?

A—I should think it would be.

Q—This point Attorney O'Donoghue took up the cross-examination.

Q—You say it was the duty of the chief to look after the men when they are sent into a dangerous position?

A—Yes, if it had been reported to him.

On cross-examination by Attorney O'Donoghue, Private Dyer reiterated his statement as to the methods employed in fighting the fire and the length of time before the crash came.

Schwedtfeger Is Called.

Private W. L. Schwedtfeger, another of the injured firemen, was then summoned. He testified that he was buried under the debris four hours before being rescued.

Q—When you arrived did you see Sullivan in front of the building?

A—Yes, he was in front of the building. He pointed to the front door of the building. Five or ten minutes later he came in and asked if we could work our way up. We announced that we could not, and he went back to the top of the second landing.

Private Schwedtfeger testified that he was in the building about thirty minutes before the crash came. He was taken out, he said, about five minutes after he was buried. He was taken out by Charles F. Nugent, a member of the trial board, and the work was done about an hour or three-quarters of an hour before he was taken out.

Q—Who is charged with looking after the safety of the men?

A—The chief.

Q—Which one?

A—The one in charge.

Q—When one chief is sent up, when does the responsibility cease?

A—I don't know.

Attorney Dyer then took up the cross-examination.

Q—It looked safe to go to the second floor when you were ordered by Chief Sullivan?

A—Yes.

Q—Do you know the printed rules requiring captains to look after the safety of their men?

A—They are to a certain extent.

Q—On this occasion there was nothing to indicate danger?

A—No.

The witness was asked by Joseph C. Buckley, a member of the board, if it was an unusual thing for the officer in charge of a fire to place a company and then give the men the order to go up. The answer was "No."

Chief Egloff, of No. 13 Company, appeared on the witness stand from Chief Sullivan who sent him to the men in the burning building, was the last witness. He told of the rescue and service in the department, and of his arrival at the fire.

Egloff Arrives At Fire.

"When I arrived with my company," Captain Egloff said, "I dropped off at the house where it passed the building. I saw a line of men going into the building, and naturally followed them. I went in and saw the company going down. I saw a man in a blue shirt, and I saw a man in a blue shirt. I saw a man in a blue shirt, and I saw a man in a blue shirt. I saw a man in a blue shirt, and I saw a man in a blue shirt."

Proctor Next Witness.

Attorney Proctor called the next witness, Chief Sullivan. He testified that he was the first to arrive at the scene, and that he saw the fire on the second floor. He said that he saw the fire on the second floor, and that he saw the fire on the second floor. He said that he saw the fire on the second floor, and that he saw the fire on the second floor.

TESTIFIES AS FIRE EXPERT

EDWARD F. CROKER.
Former chief of the New York fire department, who is to appear before trial board and testify in behalf of Deputy Chief Sullivan.

Q—What is the rule if the chief leaves the front?

A—I don't know of any.

Q—When does the responsibility of the man who put them in there end?

A—When he is sent to another station.

Q—Do you know of any rule as to reporting the position of these men?

A—No, sir. I don't know any rule.

Q—That is just what I am trying to get at, if there is a rule.

A—I don't know of any.

Q—When a superior comes on the ground is it his duty to ascertain the position of the men, or is some one required to tell him?

Should Find Men.

A—I think he should find them.

Q—Then there is no rule to report, to look after these men?

A—I don't know of any.

Q—Suppose a battalion chief is there, and some one tells him that there is no rule to require that he report men in possible danger?

A—I don't know any rule.

Q—Take the case of these men, is there no rule in such a case?

A—I think it is the custom to look after the men.

Q—Well, then, it is just a haphazard whether these men are looked after or not?

A—Well, I wouldn't put it that way. It is understood that the senior will look after the men.

Q—Do you think the senior should look after the men?

A—Yes, particularly those out of sight.

Q—There is no rule for that?

A—Yes, verbal orders.

Q—If one captain brings men out of a burning building, who does he report to?

A—The first man I meet higher.

Q—To further questioning, Captain Egloff testified that when he saw the fire on the second floor, he saw the fire on the second floor, and that he saw the fire on the second floor.

NUGENT AND SMITH NOT AMONG INVITED

New Jersey Politicians Who Fought Wilson Are Off List For Reception.

There will be two conspicuous, notable absences at the New Jersey reception at the White House this evening. James Smith, Jr. ("Jim") in political parlance, and James Nugent (likewise) were not invited. Governor Fielder will be there with Mrs. Fielder, so will the Democratic leaders of the New Jersey Legislature, so will the Democratic leaders of the State generally, and so will the Democratic editors. But Mr. Smith and Mr. Nugent will be conspicuous by their absence.

James Smith, Jr., who was formerly a United States Senator from New Jersey, but whose anti-Wilson activities have kept him an ex-member of that body. It was James Nugent, who, soon after Mr. Wilson became Governor of New Jersey, and began teaching New Jersey what a real anti-boss campaign meant, at a political banquet at which he presided as State chairman, and lifting aloft a glass said:

"I drink to Woodrow Wilson—grate, do I drink the toast alone?"

He did, and not long afterward he was forced out as State chairman.

It was the pair of Essex county bosses who, at the Baltimore convention, fought the nomination of Woodrow Wilson persistently voting on every ballot for Champ Clark.

When the invitation list was made up for the New Jersey reception tonight, the names of Smith and Nugent were carefully omitted.

Outside of these omissions all that is representative of New Jersey Democracy will be at the reception. All that was a staid representative, with wives and daughters, seemed to be at the executive offices today. There was Secretary Tumulty, smiling, cheerful and cordial, and as delegation after delegation of Jerseyans rolled up to the executive offices in taxicabs, or trudged thither on foot, he was there with extended hand. He acted as president, and letting the fair ones sit in the front of the car, he would do the honors.

It is expected that about 400 or 500 guests will be present at the reception. If well enough, the President himself will attend for a few moments. Otherwise, Mr. Wilson, who will be in the city, aided by Secretary Tumulty, will do the honors.

Depositors Continue Run on Newark Bank

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 12.—Despite assurances of the soundness of the Newark Savings Institution by large employers of labor and by the board of trade, the "run" on the bank continued today. Almost 600 depositors were in line at the bank's opening. They were kept in order by the police and money was paid out by several extra tellers.

President Samuel S. Dennis said that he has received offers of millions of dollars in cash by New York and Philadelphia banks. But the bank's board, aggregating a million dollars were brought out of the vaults today and piled up in the cages.

COMMITTEE MAKES RED LIGHT REPORTS

Amounts Spent and Number of Women Aided Described in Detail.

Detailed reports of the work done for the women of Washington's erstwhile "red light" district, who are anxious to begin life anew, by the citizens' central committee appointed by the District Commissioners to root the situation will be made this afternoon through the executive committee of the general body.

The committee assembled at 1:30 o'clock in the office of Dr. William C. Woodward, health officer of the District. Reports on the money collected by the general committee, and the manner in which the money has been used, how many women are being cared for, how many have been placed in homes, and how many are now employed in offices and other places will be submitted at the meeting.

Argument on the motion to quash the information against Annie Duncan, colored, the first woman arrested on a charge of violating the Kenyon law by keeping a bawdy house, which was filed by the woman's attorney will be made by District Attorney Wilson in the Police Court February 17 Judge Pugh will be the presiding judge. He has made the cause a special order of business for 11 o'clock next Tuesday morning.

Attorney Robert I. Miller and Thomas J. Jones, who represent the Duncan woman, declare in their motion to quash that the Kenyon law is unconstitutional. They also aver that the Police Court in which the information was filed has no jurisdiction in the case on the ground that the information does not set forth any offense legally cognizable.

FIRE BELLS CAUSE STIR AT HEARING

Passing Engines Caused Chiefs and Privates to Jump Yesterday Afternoon.

The training of men of the Fire Department all the effect on the subconscious mind of the first faint sound of the gong, was shown yesterday when fire bells caused a stir of excitement at the hearing of the case of Deputy Fire Chief Andrew J. Sullivan.

The board room of the Municipal Building was crowded. Chief Wagner was under the strain of cross-examination. Deputy Chief Sullivan was an intent listener, and every person in the room was under tension. Faint and far away in the building a bell tap sounded, and simultaneously there came the clang of the gong of No. 2 truck pulling out of its quarters in Fourteenth street.

TOKYO POLICE USE SABERS ON RIOTERS

Clash Brings 200 Arrests. Anti-Tax and Navy Scandals Cause Clamor.

TOKYO, Feb. 12.—Clubs and sabers in police hands subdued anti-government agitators and 200 were arrested in fierce rioting throughout the city tonight. Many men were injured by the officers.

Shortly after midnight 200 policemen charged a mob of several thousand anti-tax advocates who were clamoring against the diet for sustaining the government in the naval scandal.

Several opposition newspapers, which criticized the government, have been suppressed and their editors jailed.

The government, encouraged by the defeat in the diet of the resolution of want of confidence, is adopting drastic means to put down the rioting, and the police and troops are armed with authority to use any force necessary to disperse mobs.

It's easy to apply. "GETS-IT"—one, two, three, and it's done! The corn begins to shrivel, away she goes, surely, absolutely. A few drops will do it. "GETS-IT" never makes toes red and raw. Corn pains go! It means the end of cutting and gouging of corns, the end of sticky plasters that don't work anyhow, the end of salves that eat up your toes, no more "harness," or fussing. Try "GETS-IT," the new, sure way, for corns and calluses.
